Experience

Developer at Atlassian

June 2015 - Present

I contribute to HipChat's desktop and web experiences to enable teams around the world to collaborate in real time with file sharing, integrations, and group video!

Senior Front-End Engineer at The Advisory Board Company

April 2014 - June 2015 (1 year 2 months)

I led the development of client and middle-tier server for multiple mobile and desktop. I also built an internal style-guide, component library, and visualization library to increase velocity for our engineering and user experience teams.

"Brantley is one of the most forward thinking members of the engineering team. Pushing everyone he works with to think critically and strategically about mobile solutions."

- Jay Morrow, Director of Front-End Engineering

"Brantley shows great promise as a burgeoning architect and manager, as he is constantly calibrating the work requests against business requirements and broader concerns, such as support and marketing. He coordinates with other team members, both inside and outside the product, and ensures that he (and we) are well-positioned for other Realtime products and Platform initiatives."

- Mitchell Morris, Development Manager

Front-End Engineer at The Advisory Board Company

January 2013 - April 2014 (1 year 3 months)

"Sometimes it's hard to remember that Brantley is 'just' an FEE ... He has repeatedly shown the ability to take vague story request from PM and turn them into solid workflows, attractive performant pages, well-defined tasked and estimated feature tickets, and robust working code in the release. It's a delight to be part of a team that includes him as he is a tremendous force multiplier in our day-to-day and release cycle operations."

- Mitchell Morris, Development Manager

Web Developer at Bohemian Innovation

August 2011 - November 2012 (1 year 3 months)

Developed front-end code for all projects, ranging from websites, iPhone & Android apps, and large interactive displays for clients like Adidas, Fox, EAST, and local start-ups.
